E-sign consent

Version 1, published 2026-10-08. Source: https://afgfinance.app/esign

This page explains how we provide documents electronically and asks for your consent to do so. Please read it before you agree. You can save or print it, or download the PDF version from this page.

What this consent covers

If you agree, we may give you these documents electronically instead of on paper: your retail installment contract and its disclosures; notices about your application, including any notice that we cannot offer you credit; privacy notices; account statements and payment confirmations; and any other notice or document the law requires us to give you in writing.

How we deliver documents

We post documents to your secure account on this website and email you when a new document is available. Some documents we also attach to the email. Documents stay in your account for as long as you have a contract with us.

What you need

- A current version of Chrome, Edge, Firefox, or Safari, with cookies turned on
- Software that opens PDF files, such as the PDF viewer built into your browser
- An email account you can access
- Storage space to save documents, or a printer to print them

If we change these requirements in a way that could keep you from getting your documents, we will tell you first and you can withdraw your consent at no cost.

Paper copies

You can ask for a paper copy of any document we provide electronically, at any time. We do not charge for paper copies. Ask from your account or contact us using the details below.

Withdrawing your consent

You can withdraw your consent at any time, at no cost, from your account or by contacting us. If you withdraw before you sign your contract, we may not be able to finish your application online. After you withdraw, we send documents to your mailing address on paper.

Keeping your contact information current

Please tell us right away if your email address changes. You can update it in your account or by contacting us.
